

Andy's Photoshop Tip #21 - Creating Wild Colorful Textures

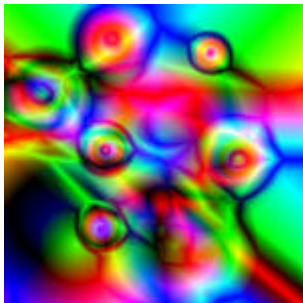

1

Create a new document. Select any two colors for your foreground & background colors (I used red & blue). Now create a gradient fill using the "Clockwise Spectrum" Style.

2

Now click on the pull-down menu on the gradient options dialog box & change "Normal" to "Difference". Now fill with another gradient on top of the older one.

3

Continue this process, experimenting with linear & radial blends & different settings. In just a few seconds you will have an awesome colorful texture to be used with any image or be altered for any type of cool effect.
